

David Beckham visits Bond at Brickell: PHOTOS

Soccer legend stops by condo project's sales center to promote MLS franchise

June 19, 2014 12:45PM

« PREVIOUS

NEXT »

Print |      8+

David Beckham and Alicia Cervera Lamadrid

British soccer legend David Beckham stopped by The Bond at Brickell's sales office to spend time with members of Miami's business and real estate community.

During his visit to the British-themed condo building's sales office, Beckham touted the benefits of a Major League Soccer franchise in the city. Beckham and his backers have spent more than a year trying to work out a deal for a stadium site. The City of Miami opted against the most recent proposed site, a downtown Miami boat slip next to AmericanAirlines Arena. Click here for more photos of the event on The Real Deal's South Florida Facebook page.

The Bond is a 44-story, 328-unit condo tower to be developed by Rilea Group at 1080 Brickell Avenue.

Check back on the Facebook page for photos from other events, photos of the priciest properties hitting the market, and much more. — Eric Kalis